

FAST FORWARDING TO THE FUTURE (TRIPLE F INITIATIVE)

Fast Forwarding to the Future (FFF), popularly known as Triple F, is the brainchild of young African academics and activists, working with Mwelekeo wa NGO (MWENGO), a reflection and development centre for NGOs in Eastern and Southern Africa (ESA), whose mission is to nurture a community of values by strengthening and mobilising African human resources in support of organisations fighting for social justice.

Objectives

- To establish a forum to share knowledge and develop understanding of issues affecting Africa
- A vision to which the region and the continent can aspire
- To share the Vision.
- A road map with indicators that point out the direction towards this desirable future
- To build up a movement to work towards the achievement of the Vision
- The framework of a possible advocacy agenda
- A set of projections with an indication of assumptions and requirements in order to approach the milestones that have been set
- Guidelines to inform decision making processes by regional leaders

Additional information

- Triple F is an opportunity for the youth in the continent to dream and create an Africa of their choice by 2050.
- It is a roadmap to freedom from poverty, disease, underdevelopment, corruption and all the vices besetting the continent.
- It is a chance to influence trends and events towards a better life for Africans.

Young people

- There is a large pool of well exposed, dynamic young people who are willing to dream, take calculated risks and make a difference for the region/continent;
- A passion, vigour and romanticism in youth which can be harnessed and used effectively. After all it is to the young that the older generation will cede their responsibilities in time
- The advent of Information technology (IT) offers many new opportunities to get over the sheer distances that have been a barrier in themselves
- Current trends towards regional/continental integration on account of forces that our leaders were able to ignore in the past
