

Re-Branding Africa, Youth the Architects

Promoting Youth Peace Education and Leadership Development, this will enhance their capacities on the shared best practices for peace and development across culture, gender, religion and political backgrounds. This is to fashion the youth's peaceful democratic participation in Uganda and Africa as a continent.

Objectives

- 1: Youth and Democracy: «Addressing the wide spread of inter-ethnic and inter-political conflicts, lawlessness and issues of armed civilian populations. Lack of good governance is the sole obstacle to Africa's socio political and economic development. Lack of good governance is the sole obstacle to Africa's socio political and economic development, and we have always emphasized on the need to outline youth's roles in ensuring peaceful political elections, peace building during conflicts, and empowering and how they can be the problem solving agents that brings about a shared democracy».
- 2: Peace and Stability: «Increase resilience (youth and community's knowledge on the international standards and laws, shared best practices for peace and development across the nation. We employ instructurally sound methods that include community dialogues/public forums, media (radio and brochures) targeting young and old, uneducated, former child soldiers and ex-combatants. We coordinates war victim's rehabilitations, their access to information's, protections, participations, justice and reparation; especially for the youth, children and the communities that has suffered serious human rights violation due to war».

VICTOR OCHEN

African Youth Initiative
Network - AYINET
www.ayinet.or.ug
UGANDA

Young people

The project specializes on the understanding of how to enable youth realize their potentials, take advantage of their majority and honorably exercise their roles to develop Africa. It focuses 3 thematic areas of ;

- 1: Democracy and Good Governance: African leaderships and elections are loosing their meaning too fast, with grave impacts on especially they youth. Despite the legal systems introduced by the colonial powers and inherited by our national constitutions, one common result has been the ethnically divisive dominance of the executive branch of government by leaders in power. The underlying litany of Uganda and the entire Africa's development problems is a crisis of governance. We believe African Youth have the greatest task to revitalize the African democracy.
- 2 : Peace and Stability: Solutions to Africa's endless catastrophic violent conflicts must begin with youth. Many African leaders and state officials have, and are serving their own interest without fear of accountability and politics has become personalised and as a patronage to maintain power. AYINET employs some sound methods to holistically engage youth in promoting peace and justice, human rights, education, health and most importantly; the Income generating activities to curb the unemployment.

